Couture Hand Embroidery

Rebecca Offredi

Design Profile Rebecca Miriam Offredi

Rebecca Miriam Offredi is an award winning, London based, Freelance Embroidery Artist and designer. Working within the disciplines of Fashion, Interiors, and Textile Art, she creates bespoke, couture, embroidered collections of work. Having started her working life as a Private Banker in London's west end in the early 2000's, Rebecca left her career in 2018 to pursue her passion for embroidery full time. Retraining at the Royal School of Needlework she graduated in 2021 with a degree in Hand Embroidery and a multidisciplinary approach to her practice.

With a strong basis in emotional memories, Rebecca's pieces and collections stem from a fundamental desire to create beautiful, exquisite and original works which showcase her skill as a technical hand embroiderer. Formed of complicated layers of fabrics, of varying diaphaneity and colour, her work is densely, intricately and exquisitely embroidered with a wide range of different threads, materials and lustres. The emphasis within the pieces is placed firmly on the embroidery, with the craft and complexity of her work taking centre stage. A distinct design handwriting, combined with impactful bold use of colours, patterns, metallics and attention to detail, result in pieces that pack a punch and command attention.

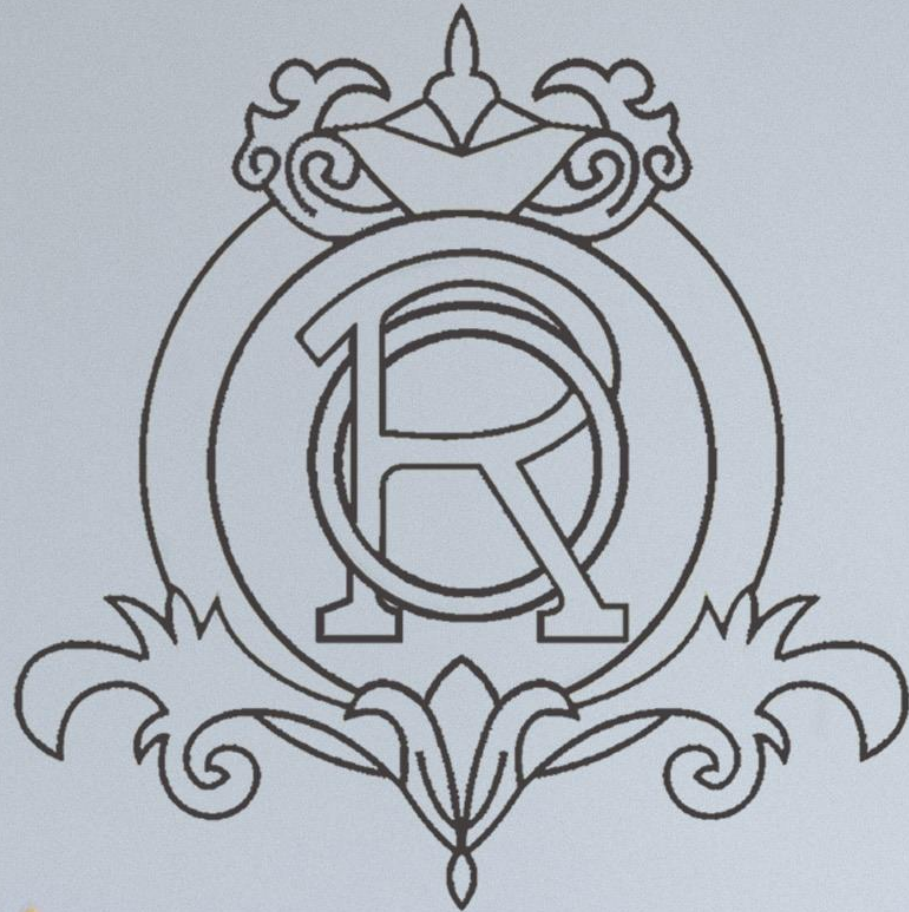

Nominated for several accolades and national awards for her work Rebecca has to date won: The Worshipful Company of Glovers National Glove Design Award 2018; The Worshipful Company of Needleworkers – Best Technical Stitch Award 2018; The Bradford Textile Society Design Competition 2019 Section E1; The Lapa Charitable Trust Award Third Prize; and The Arts Society (Greater London) Contextual Essay Award 2019. Her work has been exhibited at the Knit and Stitch Show London Olympia 2018 and 2019, Hampton Court Palace Royal School of Needlework Animals in Embroidery 2018, Birmingham Festival of Quilts 2018, The Stanley Picker Gallery Kingston Hanbok Exhibition in association with the Korean Cultural Society 2019, and Susan Aldworths "Out of the Blue" at Hatton Gallery in Newcastle 2020.

The thankful recipient of the Victoria Adams Scholarship Fund, 2017-2018, The Worshipful Company of Needleworkers Bursary 2018-19 and The Arts Society Greater London Region Bursary, Rebecca has used these awards to further develop her practice and technical skills, whilst continuing to push the boundaries of traditional hand embroidery.

Rebecca has extensive freelance hand embroidery experience having worked regularly for Alexander McQueen, Jasper Conran, Ralph and Russo, E Tautz and Burberry. In addition to freelance embroidery, she also regularly undertakes paid speaking engagements for a variety of groups and organisations to discuss both her practice and promote the art of embroidery. In addition, she also incorporates private commission work and one on one and group instruction in the specialised fields of Tambour and Goldwork embroidery.

Odysseys of Grief

Artists Statement - Odysseys of Grief

Odysseys of Grief is a body of embroidered work strongly rooted in Rebecca Offredi's emotional memories from the last two years. During this time, she experienced an unexpected series of events which caused great personal upset, grief and loss. These events led to a bout of profound anxiety and depression, which in turn affected nearly every aspect of her life, both professional and personal. Much of her most successful work to date is strongly rooted in emotional memories; both good and bad; it seemed sensible, apt and almost cathartic to use such current and strong emotional memories from her life as a basis for this new collection.

There are three underlying and intertwining themes from which Odysseys of Grief is woven. The first is her own personal experience of loss and grief over the last two years and its impact on her life. The second uses the classical works of the Odyssey and the Iliad and the protagonists' journey as a metaphor for grief and loss. The third draws on Rebecca's own journey travelling around Europe with her husband; during their wanderings she created a sketch book of the architecture encountered in the different cities and countries they visited. Undertaken in the midst of this emotional turmoil, drawings made in & of these cities with their fantasy landscapes and architecture became a representation of her life and mind; which in turn had been torn down and destroyed by a profound loss. These sketches and the photographs she took are an important source of inspiration for this project and are represented strongly in the final pieces of the collection.

Depicted as a series of sculptural and heavily embroidered crowns and body adornments, the individual works from this collection represent three different stages of grief. The first piece is a depiction of the initial stages of loss; a time where you feel choked by the desolation, unable to see without looking through the ruins of something precious and broken. The second represents the retreat, as you pull back from everything to regather yourself and try to rebuild. The third crown is about soaring out of the remnants, to build and create something beautiful and new. The three pieces, whilst visually different are united in theme and embroidery techniques; using a mixture of traditional and experimental Goldwork, Tambour beading, Stumpwork and Crewelwork. They are a blend of her personal style of heavily embellished and embroidered pieces in a variety of techniques and metallics which create a visually striking and arresting profile.

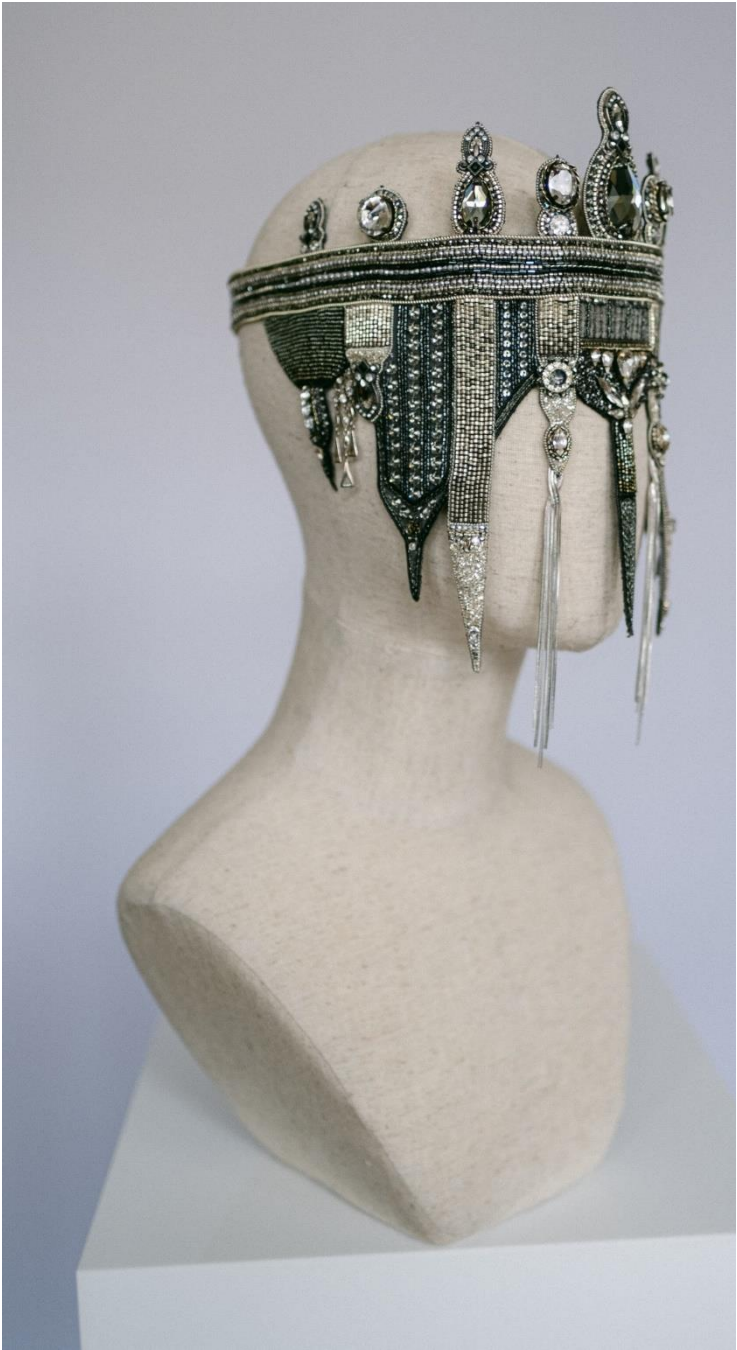

Although the themes that underpin this project are challenging and from a point in Rebecca's life where she was deeply sad, Odysseys of Grief is ultimately a project based around hope that loss grief and the associated anxiety and depression are not insurmountable or permanent. Rebecca's aim is to create a body of work which depicts the destruction of loss and the rebuilding of something new and beautiful.
