

TV Ruins

TV Ruins

Qifeng Xu

Intradition

TV Ruins

In this work, I would like to express some of my views on traditional television.

This project was inspired when I was watching online shows on my iPad. I marvel at the speed with which technology has advanced and the fact that the Internet has eliminated the need for me to follow a television schedule as I used to. Nowadays, the use rate of TV is gradually declining. Traditional TV seems to be gradually fading out of our life and becoming less important. TV was very important to my childhood. I still remember turning on the TV as soon as I came home from school. In order not to miss the beginning of the cartoon, I was the first one to leave the classroom every day. Now I have not found the previous kind of watching TV impulse.

Mobile Internet is taking the place of traditional TV. The functions of traditional TV are easily realized by the Internet, from TV programs, TV news, live sports events and so on. The Internet can do better, more conveniently and accurately. The Internet allows people to find content they like more accurately and quickly. It doesn't seem unreasonable that traditional television will be replaced. It is inevitable that new things will replace old ones.

Through this work, I want to express my regret for the decline of traditional television.

TV in the ruins

I chose to combine the TV set with the ruins.
Because they look the same to me

The TV in the trash

TV in the wilderness

The television was conspicuous among the ruins, but in another way it was inconspicuous

TV in family

In further research, I found that traditional TV sets are an important part of family and social interaction. Television used to be one of the main entertainment items for a family. I still remember that every time after dinner, the family would gather around the TV and wait for the program to start. They might even argue over the remote control. At the beginning of the show, families discuss the plot of the TV series together, which is undoubtedly a way to promote family ties.

But that is less and less the case these days. People don't have to watch TV together to wait for their favorite shows. They can choose what they like to watch and watch it on their mobile phones or computers. After dinner, each took out their own mobile phones to watch videos, chat, play games. Family relationships have undoubtedly changed under the influence of the Internet, perhaps by spending less time together or talking to each other.

The TV was working, but no one was paying attention

Transparent television

No Communicaiton

Do your own thing

*No one knows whether it is good or bad
For Traditional Television.*